

Contents

|                                                           |    |
|-----------------------------------------------------------|----|
| Foreword                                                  | 7  |
| Acknowledgments                                           | 11 |
| Abbreviations                                             | 17 |
| Notes on transliteration                                  | 19 |
| 1. Introduction                                           | 21 |
| Part I: Creation of the Self in Tales              | 35 |
| 2. Proem                                                  | 37 |
| 3. Cosmic Aspect                                          | 45 |
| The Sun Absolute, the sacred laws and time                | 49 |
| The Trogoautoegocrat, the Stopindersand the Okidanokh | 54 |
| The Kundabuffer                                           | 60 |
| 4. Human Aspect                                           | 65 |
| Brains and centers                                        | 67 |
| Bodies                                                    | 72 |
| Three types of “being-food”                               | 79 |
| Peculiarities of human nature                             | 86 |

|                                                                                      |     |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| 5. Practical Aspect                                                           | 99  |
| The role of intellect                                                                | 101 |
| The ideal self                                                                       | 105 |
| Partkdolg-duty                                                                       | 115 |
| Part II: Esotericism and Mysticism                                            | 125 |
| 6. Proem                                                                      | 127 |
| 7. Western Esotericism and Occultism                                          | 133 |
| 8. Mysticism and Western Sufism                                               | 147 |
| 9. Modern Epistemologies of the Self                                          | 167 |
| Inwardness                                                                           | 167 |
| Experience                                                                           | 176 |
| 10. Nuancing Gurdjieff's Approach                                             | 185 |
| Criticism of modern civilization                                                     | 186 |
| Comparing with the modern self                                                       | 193 |
| Part III: Perfection of the Self in Sufism:        A Comparative Reading | 205 |
| 11. Proem                                                                     | 207 |
| 12. Sufi Concept of the Self                                                  | 215 |
| 13. Perfection of the Self                                                    | 229 |
| General Islamic practices                                                            | 231 |
| Specific Sufi practices                                                              | 235 |

|                                          |     |
|------------------------------------------|-----|
| 14. Annihilation of the Self      | 247 |
| Concepts of “sobriety” and “drunkenness” | 249 |
| Death (physical and mystical)            | 256 |
| 15. Conclusion                    | 273 |
| Appendix                          | 287 |
| Bibliography                      | 291 |