

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
INTRODUCTION	I
The Mabo Decision: Text and Context	8
Post-Mabo Cultural Practice in Australia	16
Post-Mabo History, Film and Literature	19
Historiographic Realignments: Moving on from White	25
Narrating the Nation Anew	30
PART I Writing After Mabo	33
CHAPTER I
Four Core Post-Mabo Novels	35
David Malouf, Remembering Babylon (1993)	35
Alex Miller, Journey to the Stone Country (2002)	43
Andrew McGahan, The White Earth (2004)	51
Kate Grenville, The Secret River (2005)	58
CHAPTER 2
Re-writing the Past: Mabo and History	71
Frontier Violence in Liam Davison's The White Woman (1994)	73
Disease in Debra Adelaide's Serpent Dust (1998)	82
Exploration in Peter Mews' Bright Planet (2004)	89
Historiography in Richard Flanagan's Death of a River Guide (1994) and Gould's Book of Fish (2001)	93

CHAPTER 3

Re-writing the Present: Mabo and Contemporary Australia	107
Co-existence: Dorothy Hewett's Neap Tide (1999)	108
Respect and Visitorship: Tim Winton's Dirt Music (2001)	120
Country Towns and Rural Place: Thea Astley's The Multiple Effects of Rainshadow (1996) and Drylands (1999)	130
Negotiated Belonging: Michelle de Kretser's The Lost Dog (2007) and Simone Lazaroo's Lost River: Four Albums (2014)	141

PART II Writing Beyond Mabo	155
-------------------------------	-----

CHAPTER 4

Sovereignty: Mabo and Aboriginal-Authored Fiction	157
Introducing Sovereignty Novels	161
Sovereignty and Mabo	165
Return of the "Unspeakable"	168
Sovereign Voice: Orality and Narrative Invention in Alexis Wright's Carpentaria (2006)	171
Sovereign Space and SovereignMentality: Alexis Wright's The Swan Book (2013)	192
Once Were Sovereign and Still Are: Kim Scott's That Deadman Dance (2010)	208
Sovereignty Beyond Legal Title: Melissa Lucashenko's Mullumbimby (2013)	219

CONCLUSION

Dominant, Residual and Emergent Cultures	233
Framing a Literary Era	237
Bibliography	239
Index	263